The lights deepened by gay awnings rest aimlessly with drooping arms on wide white armchairs. The ringing of bells draws faint echoes from the well-dressed sides of the chains, nestling in leaves. In the winter the lakes of your country reflect thin flames the fingers of trees touch lightly your white and blue fabrics. The brown fields of restrained laughter are dotted with the white teeth of the snow. Over your plains fly birds unexpected . You assort the days and the nights in your cabinets with languid intelligence. Improbably you touch the old beard of Truth until the unwilling mouth grows eloquent. Little do you know or care to know of his past. About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books.
