Not illustrated. 1907 Excerpt: .Children have such vivid imaginations that they are capable of becoming frightened by their own pictures. When they become interested in a story, it is difficult, even in the kindergarten, to check their flow of suggested ideas; conversations among them are as natural as among adults; developing instruction is based on the assumption that their experiences are rich enough to allow contributions of thought continually; and fables, calling for interpretation, are especially written for them. Here, then, are the beginnings of a third ability of great importance, i. e., the power to supplement an author s thought. The best of authors fail to put most of their ideas into print. Or, as Buskin declares, all literature--like the story of the Prodigal Son--appears practically in the form of parables requiring much supplementing to be properly pictured and interpreted. The words in a minister s text in comparison...

Here is the finest ebook i have got read until now. It really is simplistic but excitement within the 50 percent in the book. Once you begin to read the book, it is extremely difficult to leave it before concluding.
