In the combined processes of manufacturing and carbureting blue water gas according to present practice, few experiments have been made on the equilibria of the constituents to find out the effect of varying pressure, temperature and concentration conditions. In the technical literature of gas manufacture, one rarely finds a reference to the relationship which may exist between the spheres of reaction in the process. The natural conclusion has been that the water gas and oil gas reactions are separate and influence each other but little. It is proposed to consider some of the factors in which the H_2 , CO , CO_2 and H_2O of the blue water gas may affect the proportions of CH_4 , C_2H_4 , H_2 , etc., resulting from the cracking of the gas oil which is...

Reviews

A new e book with a brand new standpoint. I am quite late in start reading this one, but better then never. I discovered this ebook from my i and dad advised this publication to understand.
