Both axillse were full of hard metastatic glands, both pleural cavities contained bloody fluid, there was a constant hacking cough, and the patient was in a condition of semi-collapse. Such was her condition on the 27th of December. On the morning of the 28th she felt much better, was able to take food and to breathe with comfort. Even more remarkable than this a change was noticed in the size and consistency of the growths. This change progressed until after the lapse of a few weeks the patient seemed to be perfectly well. Mackay candidly admits his inability to account for these phenomena, simply calling them agencies in the spontaneous cure of a cancer. He suggests that the fluid which developed in the pleural cavities was in reality a serum manufactured by the body containing an anti-cancer virus of...
